Investment Objective

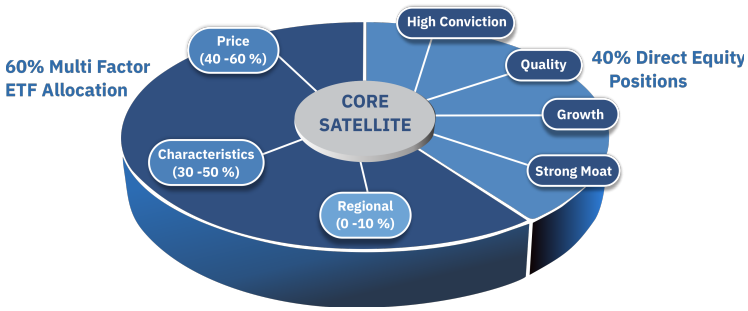

The primary objective of the Fund is to achieve long-term capital appreciation for its Shareholders. The Fund aims to invest in high-quality companies that are intrinsically profitable, as measured by sustainably high returns on invested capital, with organic growth prospects, healthy balance sheets and managed by diligent management teams with a track record of delivering consistent results. The investment approach seeks to identify quality businesses and to invest at an appropriate valuation with a margin of safety.

Investment Philosophy

The Fund is built on a foundation of disciplined global equity investing, with a focus on long-term capital appreciation. The fund employs a blended strategy, allocating approximately 60% to core multi-factor ETFs and 40% to high-conviction direct equities, ensuring diversified exposure across geographies, sectors, and compelling business models. The fund seeks to invest in businesses with strong fundamentals, sustainable competitive advantages, predictable free cash flows, and resilient earnings profiles. Emphasis is placed on high-quality companies operating within secular growth trends, in developed as well as developing markets. While the fund remains benchmark-aware, it is not benchmark-driven, prioritizing absolute returns, risk-adjusted performance, and downside protection through astute diversification.

Fund Commentary

Beneath the surface, September was much weaker than the index suggests. More than three quarters of S&P 500 stocks fell yet the index lost only 0.45%, and the Dow dropped around 4%. However, the Nasdaq gained 2% as semiconductors rallied, with the iShares Semiconductor ETF rising 11.2%. Meta added to the strength after launching its Muse AI assistant on 8 September, which moved quickly to the top of the US App Store rankings. The shares gained about 11% in a single session on 21 September to close at $741 after Wells Fargo raised its price target to $796 from $640 and cited record downloads. Momentum also recovered, with the iShares MSCI USA Momentum Factor ETF returning 5.79% after a sharp pullback from its June highs. Financials were the weakest sector, down 7.3%, and consumer-facing names were also soft, with Netflix, Booking Holdings and Uber falling 14.15%, 17.98% and 9.44%.

Rising interest rates were the main pressure. A strong August payrolls report on 4 September hardened hike expectations and the Fed then raised rates by 25 basis points from 3.75% to 4.00% on 16 September, its first increase since 2023. Sixteen of eighteen officials project at least one more hike this year, and consequently the ten-year Treasury yield rose from 4.75% to around 5.3%, close to its highest level since 2007. Headline inflation held at 3.4% in August, so lighter PCE data on 30 September brought only brief relief. The average thirty-year US mortgage rate reached 7.12%, its highest in more than two years.

The war with Iran resumed in early September when the US struck Iranian tankers near Kharg Island and Iran fired missiles at US forces in Jordan. Brent briefly traded above $107 mid-month and ended near $97, up roughly 7% from around $91 at the end of August. Gold fell from above $4 400 to near $4 130 as yields climbed. Markets head into October with a tightening Fed, yields near multi-year highs and the US and Iran still unresolved. Little of what unsettled markets earlier in the summer has been resolved, and none of it points to calm into year end.
