The Fund performance is calculated on a total return basis, net of all fees and in US dollar terms. NAV to NAV figures have been used for the performance calculations. The performance is calculated for the Fund. The individual investor performance may differ, as a result of various factors, including the actual investment date. Investment performance calculations are available for verification upon request. Annualised returns are period returns re-scaled to a period of 1 year. This allows investors to compare returns of different assets that they have owned for different lengths of time. Actual annual figures are available to investors upon request. Cell Specific Disclosure: US CPI +2% performance has been shown as an indication of how the fund's returns compare to its objective of delivering capital appreciation in real terms. Peer group: Morningstar EAA Fund USD Moderate Allocation. With effect from 01.03.20 the performance comparison chart uses the peer group average . In MDDs prior to this date the peer group median was used and was calculated with the following filters in place: 1) oldest share class; 2) funds registered in South Africa; 3) funds not domiciled in South Africa.

Market Commentary

The US-Iran conflict, which began with US and Israeli strikes in late February 2026, continued to cast a shadow over global markets through May. A ceasefire reached in early April has held in a fragile sense, but the Strait of Hormuz remains effectively closed to commercial shipping, keeping oil prices elevated and supply chains on edge. Peace talks have stalled, and the prospect of a resolution before mid-year appears increasingly uncertain.

Against this backdrop, global markets delivered another strong month, driven almost entirely by a handful of artificial intelligence heavyweights. The MSCI ACWI gained 2.0% in USD terms during May, extending its year-to-date return to +9.6%. Strip out AI-related stocks, however, and the broader market has made little meaningful progress since February, a concentration risk that is increasingly difficult to ignore.

US equities led the charge, with the S&P 500 up +5.3% for the month and the Nasdaq 100 surging +10.6%. The Technology Select Sector ETF gained an extraordinary +19.8% in May alone, bringing its quarterly return to +43.7%, a run that has few historical parallels outside of the dot-com era. Emerging markets also delivered strongly, with the MSCI EM Index rising +9.7% for the month. Much of this was powered by Asian technology, as Korean and Taiwanese chipmakers continued their remarkable run. Samsung and SK Hynix led the charge, surging +41.5% and +78.6% in US dollar terms respectively, on the back of insatiable global demand for memory and AI semiconductors.

Global bonds inched upwards. The Bloomberg Global-Aggregate Index increased slightly with 0.3% in USD terms for the month, as shifting monetary policy expectations and the inflationary impact of the ongoing geopolitical conflict pushed yields higher across developed markets. The US 30-year Treasury yield crossed 5% for the first time since 2007, reflecting investor concerns that central banks may need to keep rates higher for longer than previously anticipated. Global listed property also struggled in May, with the FTSE EPRA Nareit Developed Index declined in USD terms, as higher-for-longer interest rates continue to act as a structural headwind for rate-sensitive real estate.

Energy was the notable sector laggard, falling -5.6% in May. The move reflects expectations that a Hormuz resolution, whenever it comes, will release pent-up supply and weigh on prices, rather than any improvement in the underlying supply situation. Attention is now turning to the SpaceX IPO scheduled for 12 June, widely anticipated to be one of the largest listings in market history and likely to further fuel investor appetite for anything connected to the technology and AI theme.
