Fund Update

Stock selection in the US detracted from performance over the period; notably an underweight to leading chip maker NVIDIA, which gained almost 28% for the month. Other US positions to impact returns were underweights to fellow chip maker Broadcom and electric car maker Tesla. Stock selection in Japan also weighed on performance, including our holdings in Nagoya Railroad Co. and travel agency H.I.S. Co. In contrast, the Fund benefited from stock selection in Continental Europe. This included overweights to Dutch bank ING Groep N.V., French peer BNP Paribas SA and Germany's Daimler Truck Holding AG. Stock selection in emerging markets also added value; notably our holding in Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Co.

The fund performance shown in this factsheet is not calculated using the unit prices for transacting into and out of the fund. For periods up to 30 November 2021, fund performance has been calculated using the unit prices for transacting into and out of the fund. For periods from 1 December 2021 to 29 January 2023 transactional prices have been calculated using security prices available at NZ market close, while the benchmark is calculated using the security prices at the close of the different global markets. This pricing methodology difference causes an embedded lagging effect. From 1 December 2021, performance is calculated using accounting methods. The Performance calculation is measured as Net income generated over the period inclusive of fees and tax. Tax is calculated applying a PIR of 28% on taxable income. Net performance data shown is net of fees and assumes reinvestment of income.

* MSCI World Net - $NZ Index Hedged until 31/12/2010, Russell Global Large Cap - $NZ Hedged - Net Index until 30/09/2018 and MSCI ACWI Index - 100% Hedged to NZD - Net thereafter.

Net fund performance shown is net of fees and charges. Assumes reinvestment of income.

The benchmark return shown does not include any fees and is not intended to be an indicator of the return to an investor.

Performance data is provided for informational purposes only and is not intended to imply a recommendation about a product or form the basis for making an investment decision.

Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance.
